ANIMALS + WILDLIFE

ANIMAL ARMORY

| 6 X 60' |

2016

The lives of animals are not peaceful! They must be able to get food for themselves and their young and avoid becoming food themselves. Sometimes they must also compete with others of their own kind—for food, territory, or mates. Traps, lures and lies are well-known tricks of men, but they are also skilfully employed by creatures in the animal kingdom. From antlers to horns, humans have long been fascinated by the ability of animals to defend themselves with their natural-born weapons. The creatures featured in this TV series demonstrate how resourceful and inspired nature can be to ensure survival in the animal world.

BLUE WATER SAVAGES

| 8 X 30' |

2016

The release of the motion picture Jaws in 1975 instilled an irrational, almost manic fear of sharks in the general public. Sharks and their behavior were still very much a mystery, and they were considered mindless killing machines. Thanks largely to intrepid adventurers and shark biologists, the layers of mystery are being peeled back and sharks are revealing fascinating behavior around humans. They are not mindless killing machines, but top level predators who are actually far more complex than we imagined. Hosted by Former US Navy deep sea diver and Marine Naturalist, Robin D. Berg, and renowned shark expert Eli Martinez, Blue Water Savages explores the surprising behavior of dangerous sharks.

ALASKA'S WILD GOURMET

| 7 X 30' |

2016

In the remote corners of the Alaskan bush country are bounties unlike any other. Rugged, raw and now cooked - this is the last culinary frontier where one chef is redefining what it means to eat like a wild man. Classically trained chef Bradley Ewing is creating five-star restaurant quality meals in the most remote and wild areas of Alaska. Creating gourmet experiences is challenging in any restaurant, but add in the ever-changing Alaskan weather, foraging in the backyards of deadly animals, campfire cooking, lack of creature comforts, and dangerous bush plane flights... and you could have a recipe for disaster. Finicky clients, bi-polar weather changes, and food and supply shortages often push Bradley to the last ounce of his sanity but this creative, free-spirit always seems to deliver.

CHICKS ON BOARDS

| 5 X 30' |

2018

Chicks on Boards is a cinematic journey into the universe and culture of female rebels on surfboards. Surfing is an expression of freedom and limitlessness. But the seemingly endless freedom between the skies and the waves has clear borders on land. Surfing women are considered an insult across many cultures. Therefore, many of these women surf secretly - risking a lot for their passion. Through the artistic lens of cinematography we capture these campaigners in their elements as they claim freedom against all social odds – even if their passion is a provocation of their culture.
